Scaled Test Pilots Receive 2013 Ray E. Tenhoff Award

Mojave, CA, September 30, 2013:

Mark "Forger" Stucky, Michael Alsbury and Clint Nichols, Scaled Composites' Test Pilots, were the recipients of the Society of Experimental Pilot's Ray E. Tenhoff award on Saturday, September 28, 2013, for the most outstanding technical presentation given during the symposium. Their presentation, "The Road to Rocket Powered Flight," was based on their experiences during SpaceShipTwo's flight test program.

The Ray E. Tenhoff Award recognizes the most outstanding technical paper presented at the annual Society of Experimental Test Pilots (SETP) Symposium in Los Angeles, California. The award was established in 1962 and is given in memory of Convair test pilot, Ray E. Tenhoff, founder and first president of SETP (Tenhoff was killed in B-58 Hustler accident on April 22, 1960).
