Wasabi Air Racing Team Takes Fourth at Reno

Mojave, CA, September 14, 2014: The Wasabi Air Racing team of Mojave, CA flew the team's aptly named "Siren" for the second time in the annual National Championship Air Races held just north of Reno, NV. Finishing four places higher and 7 mph faster than their 2013 run, Wasabi took fourth place at 229 mph.

Wasabi's Elliot Seguin and Jenn Whaley designed and built the carbon fiber aircraft over two and a half years, culminating in a first flight in 2012. A lot of local help flocked to the team in order to support the design and build of the aircraft, including many fellow Scaled employees. A special thanks goes out from Wasabi to the following individuals: Justin Gillen, Cory Bird, Ken Baker, Jake Jacot, Mark Bassett, Dan Kreigh, Clifton Moody, Chris Higbee, Jim Tighe, and many, many more. Congratulations, Wasabi Air Racing!
